William S. Penfield
Aurur

The Romans believed that the gods made known their will by certain signs or omens, and that these signs could be interpreted from the actions of birds.

There were certain men whose duty it was to observe birds— noting their flights, feeding habits and even their singing — for indications of what would happen in the future.

These men were consulted before any important event. If the signs were unfavorable, the event was postponed.

The bird watchers were called "augurs" — probably from "avis," the Latin word for bird, and "garrere," to talk.

The English verb "augur," to foretell or anticipate, retains much of the original meaning.

... about your SOCIAL SECURITY ...

A retired Indiana public utilities worker received his first social security check from President Johnson on May 5 in a ceremony at the White House marking the increase of the social security benefit rolls to 20 million people.

William J. Kappel, 65, who retired at the end of March after 42 years of employment with the municipally owned Fort Wayne city utility system, made his claim for social security benefits just as the number of men, women, and children receiving monthly social security benefits neared the 20 million mark. In January of this year, the social security program rounded out 25 years of monthly benefit payments, Harry N. Scott, social security district manager in Dothan noted. In this span of years, he said, the number of persons receiving monthly payments increased from 222,500 in 1940 to the current 20 million.

One out of every 10 Americans is now receiving a social security check each month and 9 out of every 10 workers are building social security retirement, survivors, and disability insurance protection for themselves and their families.

The social security check presented to William Kappel by the President was for $123, the maximum amount now payable to a worker retiring at age 65. Mrs. Lorena Weber Kappel, who is over 62 but not yet 65, is receiving wife's benefits of $53.40 per month. Supplementing the Kappels' social security benefits are Mr. Kappel's pensions from the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and from the City of Fort Wayne.

Commenting on his retirement, Kappel said, "I don't know what we would do if we could not count on the social security check coming in. Even though we have a nice home that's paid for and a small pension, our modest standard of liv-

Wallace Signs Bill For Graduate School

Governor George C. Wallace has signed a bill creating a Graduate School of Social Work at the University of Alabama and appropriating $162,000 for its operation during the next two fiscal years.

This school will fill a great need in the State for professional training of social workers, the Governor said.

The school will provide a two-year course in social work and related subjects on the graduate level. Ten scholarships of $1800 each will be given to interested students who have been accepted at the school. In awarding the scholarships, preference will be given to applicants from counties in the State in which there is a severe shortage of professional social workers.

Applicants to the school from Alabama will be given first consideration.

estimates, the peak population at any one time, including visitors, would approximate 3,786,000 people," he said.

The latest figures compiled by the Civil Defense Department reveals that 1,654 fallout shelters have been located in Alabama, each accommodating 50 people or more. These are referred to by authorities as "Public Fallout Shelters," and include the Capitol building and other State buildings in Montgomery. All of these shelters would accommodate about 1,218,000 people if available for public use.

The governor said that he has been informed by Civil Defense Director J. Frank Manderson that enough of these shelter facilities have been licensed to accommodate 922,000 people while Federal shelter supplies have been stocked in these shelters to serve 619,000 people.

Fallout Shelter Project Continues In Alabama

Providing fallout shelter protection for the people of Alabama against radiation from any nuclear attack on the United States continues to be a prime objective of the Civil Defense effort in Alabama, according to Governor George C. Wallace.

Governor Wallace said the Civil Defense Department has submitted the results of a recent Shelter Survey and Report covering the shelter status in Alabama.

"Here in Alabama, according to the best possible information available, we are confident that we have a seed of known origin and purity used certified seed.

By virtue of a decree rendered by the Probate Judge of said county on May 10, 1965, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder for cash, before the court house door in Elba, Alabama, within the legal hours of sale on Tuesday, June 15, 1965, the following described real estate for taxes and cost due thereon for the year 1964, to-wit:

CORN

Forty-six adult farmers and 4-H and FFA Club members have enrolled in the Coffee County and Wiregrass Corn Production Contests. The goal is to raise the average yield of corn in Coffee County. I feel sure that if we can get enough rainfall in the weeks ahead that some of our people will make the 100 Bushel Club.

DIAGNOSTIC LAB

Coffee County farmers are in the best position of any county that I know of to determine what is wrong with their cattle and hogs. In addition to the veterinarians in the county, our farmers can take sick animals to the laboratory in Elba.

PEACHES

We have a conference set up next week with Dr. Ben Hegler and John Bagby of the Auburn University Horticulture Department and members of the county extension staff to discuss peach production. The Experiment Station in Headland is conducting a research designed to develop varieties best suited for the counties in Alabama. We will keep you posted on this.

STANDS

I talked with James Jackson of Jack, Route 1, a few days ago about peanut stands. Jackson told me on his 41 acres he has the best stand that he believes he has ever had. It looks like most of our farmers are getting excellent stands of peanuts.

SOYBEANS

Elmer Bryan, of Pine Level, was asking for information on soybeans a few days ago. We have the very latest recommendations on soybeans available to you at no charge at our office. Call on us if you would like to have information on soybeans.

4-H RALLY

A few days ago I was invited by Judge J. O. English to the annual 4-H Club Rally. Judge English had this to say about the 4-H Club Rally: "I always enjoy going to the Coffee County 4-H Club Rally. These young people are going to be our county officials and our citizens in the years to come, and we owe it to them to train them in the best way that we can."

FARM BRIEFS

A fallout shelter is like automobile insurance—you hope you won't need it, but if you do, you'll need it badly.

The best way to control insects in pine stands is to keep trees healthy.

VACATION PLANNING

This might be a good time to say a few well-chosen words about Alabama.

By proclamation of Governor Wallace this is "Vacation Planning Week", and we are sure that right now, around the country, there are thousands of people planning vacations that will bring them to or through Alabama. We hope they all come. As the Governor said in his proclamation, we have the attractions and facilities here to make their stay "a delightful experience".

Most of these people, of course, are outside our circulation area, yet we suspect that not all the people reading this newspaper have seen every major tourist attraction in this state. To those people, then, this suggestion: In addition to your regular vacation trip this year, why not arrange a number of weekend trips to visit some of this state's interesting attractions? In this fashion, you and your family will have the pleasure of not one but several vacations.

Here are just a few suggestions of places in Alabama you might enjoy visiting or revisiting this year. Fort Morgan and Fort Gaines on the Gulf, Mound State Monument Museum at Moundville, Horse Shoe Bend at Dadeville, State Capital at Montgomery, Mooreville Post Office in Mooreville, Gunter's Boat Races in Gunter, and the state's beautiful parks located throughout Alabama. Wind Creek Park in Alexander City, Ave Maria Grotto near Cullman and dozens more. In fact there are eighty-seven major tourist attractions and events in Alabama. A tour guide is available with the complete list and pictures from your State Bureau of Publicity and Information in Montgomery. It is free so why not write for it.

This list is far from a complete one, but it gives some idea of some of the attractive places to visit in Alabama.

Include one or all of them in your vacation plans this year. You'll enjoy the experience, and you'll come home a better person for one of the better states in the Union.

ALABAMA'S BEACHES
Alabama's beaches are calling, and the call comes louder as the sun gets hotter. Motorists will head south during the next several months and many will find their way to Gulf Shores and the inviting white sands of Pleasure

Island. Crystal-clear Gulf waves breaking over the sand are hard to resist. For this and other reasons more and more Alabama travelers are staying right in their own state and finding all the pleasures of Gulf coast vacationing in South Baldwin County. Perhaps its most promising asset, along with natural beauty, sun and sand, is the fact that a vacationer of moderate means will feel right at home. The cottages, motels and restaurants are very reasonable.

Some of the places you can visit include the Inter-coastal Canal, right in the heart of Gulf Shores; Alabama Point with its exciting fishing, playing poppoes, and some of the most beautiful water to be seen anywhere. For fishing and water sports there is fresh water lake at Gulf State Park.

Of interest will be temperature averages at Gulf Shores. According to the U.S. Weather Bureau the average for May, June, July and August runs from a low of 73.3 degrees to 82.3 degrees. With a fresh breeze blowing constantly from across the Gulf these are very comfortable temperatures.

For the historically minded there is old Fort Morgan where you can spend several hours touring the "Cradle of American History". A weekend or a week spent in South Baldwin County will be enjoyed by every member of the family.

This is not something new for Joan. She won the high point trophy in Daleville only a week ago and says that she will be after another in Ozark May 22. Her horse answers to the name of "Al Adams".

Poppy Sale Slated By Auxiliary

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion will distribute Poppies on Friday and Saturday, May 21 and 22.

The Poppy says, "I am only a crepe paper replica of my famous ancestor in France, the poppy of Flanders Fields, which took root and bloomed in raw earth of battlebraves, providing nature's floral tribute to the heroic dead."

I was born in a veterans' hospital. I am considered the memorial flower of the entire English-speaking world, and since World War I, I have been worn annually on Poppy Day as a symbol of remembrance, and to raise funds for the aid of disabled veterans and the children of veterans.

I have helped brighten every, an interesting and therapeutic occupation, as well as enabling them to send money home to their families.

Yes, the Poppy could go on speaking. Yes, Americans wear these memorial Poppies as proof to the world that she keeps faith with the principles for which these men fought and died.
